

Sustainability and Climate Change Services

Ensuring Credibility, Driving Impact

Unlock the Full Potential of Your Sustainability Reporting

As businesses and investors increasingly prioritising sustainability, it is essential that your sustainability efforts are not only transparent but also credible. Our Sustainability and Climate Change Services offer independent verification of your sustainability performance, ensuring that your claims are trustworthy and aligned with global best practices.

What Key Functions Do Sustainability and Climate Change Services Serve?

Increasing the confidence stakeholders can place on the sustainability information disclosure

Safeguarding quality and consistency in the sustainability information disclosure

Promoting transparency and accountability in the sustainability information

Facilitating the comparability of reported sustainability information across different organisations and time periods

Why Choose Early Voluntary Adoption of External Independent Assurance?

Assurance providers will perform more specific and targeted procedures in complying with assurance framework and in meeting with higher expectations regarding the quality and comparability of sustainability information in the market. With higher expectations, preparers can expect:

Unlock Comprehensive Business Insights

Appointing an independent assurance provider with a deep understanding of your company's sustainability operations offers valuable insights that can help identify potential risks and opportunities early. This proactive approach supports smoother operations and strengthens your sustainability strategy, even before mandatory regulations come into play.

Strengthen Systems, Processes and Governance

By embracing voluntary assurance, it positions the company to meet rising expectations around systems, processes, controls, and governance. Over time, the assurance provider's insights will drive continuous improvement, ensuring company's operations are future-ready and aligned with evolving regulatory standards.

Why Choose Early Voluntary Adoption of External Independent Assurance?

Assurance providers will perform more specific and targeted procedures in complying with assurance framework and in meeting with higher expectations regarding the quality and comparability of sustainability information in the market. With higher expectations, preparers can expect:

Elevate Documentation Standards

Voluntary assurance sets the stage for higher documentation standards, including critical details like GHG calculation methodologies and emission factors. Well-documented processes not only ensure transparency in your sustainability reporting but also lay a strong foundation for consistent and quality disclosures moving forward.

Prepare for Greater Professional Scrutiny

By adopting voluntary assurance, company demonstrates a commitment to transparency and quality. Expect increased scrutiny of the reporting and measurement methods, with a focus on improving data accuracy and methodology over time. This early focus on robust reporting enhances credibility and positions the company ahead of future regulatory demands.

Why Choose Early Voluntary Adoption of External Independent Assurance?

Assurance providers will perform more specific and targeted procedures in complying with assurance framework and in meeting with higher expectations regarding the quality and comparability of sustainability information in the market. With higher expectations, preparers can expect:

Learn from Early Feedback to Improve Systems

In the first year of voluntary assurance, company may encounter modified opinions due to incomplete or unreliable data. However, this initial feedback offers valuable insights to refine the company's systems, ensuring continuous improvement in the sustainability reporting as companies prepare for more stringent requirements down the line.

Meet & Exceed Stakeholder Requirements

Stakeholders require transparent and credible sustainability information disclosures to make the right decisions. Starting early can raise stakeholder confidence by making available future-oriented company information. Voluntary assurance can support Regulators, Investors and Shareholders, to name just a few key stakeholders, with their decision-making and value-creation. Moreover, involving your external stakeholders early can drive continuous improvements through meaningful engagement.
